The mission of this organization shall be to establish and steadily increase the awareness of Native American identity - past, present and future – within the Rutgers University community and the surrounding communities. Tied to this mission is the goal to create a network of students of Native American background and to help them to connect with their collective culture and indigenous cultures in general, as well as to help them to appreciate and know more about their specific tribal affiliation/lineage. This will assist others in learning about specific aspects of Native American history.

Program Description/Goal:

Our eboard and I were planning on hosting a powwow celebration on campus with the aim of educating the Rutgers community on how this gathering is important for the Indigenous community. For those who don't know, a powwow is a gathering of different tribes and nations for the purpose of honoring their ancestors, dancing, singing, eating, and making new friends all while celebrating their culture. This event will also give students a chance to experience this often underrepresented culture. We plan on having 9 performers from the Ramapough-Lenape tribe and one Mexica dance group performing in the powwow.
